

Listen up Kauai

Coquí Frogs - Eleutherodactylus coqui

- “ko-kee” call as loud as a lawnmower
- No natural predators in Hawaii so populations will reach 10,000 an acre which will eat 140,000 insects in one night
- Birds do not like to nest in coqui infested area

To Report this Pest Call: 821-1490

- Coqui hide in plant and other shipments
- Coqui mainly call at night
- No tadpole stage, they hatch from eggs into little froglets
- Sometime mistaken for smaller chirping Greenhouse frog